Your dog hasn't had a good year, has she? Poor little thing. It seems like only yesterday that I removed a big piece of glass from her foot. When I first saw her, I thought she'd been trapped in a gate. Then I checked her further and noticed a dog bite on her neck, so I operated immediately. She'll be sleeping now so you can collect her later. Before you go, I'd like to have a chat with you about the kind of help she'll need at home. As we discussed earlier, the surgery was quite straightforward, and it only took an hour. Don't worry about the bill, your medical insurance will cover it. Do you want to come to my office...fade

Did you know that our local supermarket has started an online shopping service? I didn't, until I found a leaflet about it stuck to the windscreen of my car. I didn't see any advertisements for it in the supermarket though. They have a truck that delivers your order straight to your house. So, this is what you need to do. Go on the supermarket's website and open an account. Browse through the products and choose what to buy. Mention the day and time for your delivery and pay by credit card. I didn't think it would be this simple. I wanted my order the same day, and it arrived on time. It was so fast. More importantly, it saved me money because I bought many products that had great offers online.

You're an experienced diver, are you? We highly recommend a visit to the country's first underwater theme park, not far from the hotel here. We tend to send many guests there. You will, of course, need to visit the Dive Centre first, organise your dive trip, and pay your fees. You'll be amazed at the 70-meter-long aeroplane which has been placed at the bottom of the sea. This will encourage a natural environment for all the beautiful sea creatures. The Ministry of Culture has launched this project to improve the pearl trade, but the theme park's goal is to become an international tourist attraction, giving a unique experience for divers! Also, schools and universities are planning to use the aeroplane as an underwater laboratory, allowing students to do practical experiments.

Good evening. This is your captain speaking. Firstly, apologies for the late arrival of this aeroplane which was due to a passenger being sick and needing urgent treatment. Unfortunately, now, the food truck has broken down, so staff are quickly loading the meals. Also, the aeroplane engineers are just doing their final safety checks, and then we'll be ready to take off. I'm a little worried that there'll be several aeroplanes in front of us to land at London City Airport, which may cause a few issues, but I'll update you during the flight. I'll try and reduce as much time as possible for passengers continuing their travels from London. I suggest you keep your seatbelts on because the weather on the way might be stormy. Enjoy your flight.... (fades)

Before we start, here is an example.

Interviewer: Good Morning listeners! Today we are talking with Matthew Round, a language specialist. Matthew, tell us why you are here today...

Matthew: Hi, thank you for having me here. Well, I love languages! I taught myself to speak six languages fluently and I can understand several more. I learnt Greek when I was young, maybe that's why I found languages easy. I can honestly say, if you speak other languages then you can talk to the world. So today, I'd like to share some top tips with you on how to learn languages.

Pause 2"

The purpose of the interview is to make suggestions on how languages are learnt, so there is a circle around the letter B.

Interviewer: Good Morning listeners! Today we are talking with Matthew Round, a language specialist. Matthew, tell us why you are here today...

Matthew: Hi, thank you for having me here. Well, I love languages! I taught myself to speak six languages fluently and I can understand several more. I learnt Greek when I was young, maybe that's why I found languages easy. I can honestly say, if you speak other languages then you can talk to the world. So today, I'd like to share some top tips with you on how to learn languages.

Interviewer: Learning a language can be challenging for some, how do you keep focused?

Matthew: I think you need to have a good reason to learn a language, otherwise, you won't stay motivated. Learning a new language to show off to a friend isn't enough. My brother Mark and I learn languages together and it really encourages me to keep going. Some people talk to themselves in the new language while they're learning. This could be a good way to practise and help to build your confidence too.

Interviewer: So, in your opinion, what's the best way to learn a language?

Matthew: There're several learning techniques. Some people think that staying in the place where the language is spoken is the best way to learn. However, I believe that you'll benefit more from staying at home, where you can communicate, understand, and interact with daily situations, just by using the internet. A more traditional approach is to learn grammar rules and then apply them by translating sentences, which isn't, in my opinion, the perfect way to develop speaking skills.

Interviewer: There are many language learning applications, but are they really beneficial?

Matthew: These applications do seem to be popular with many people. They're easy to access on your phone or device, and people who don't have time can learn wherever they are. However, you can't use them to learn how to read or write in the language. They're designed more for speaking, and many people are using language learning applications just before they travel to a new country to be able to communicate using the local language.

Interviewer: And which foreign language is the British favourite?

Matthew: I think German is the easiest language for British people to learn. This is because of its basic grammar rules and word order, which are similar to English. Research suggests that in Britain, for historical reasons, French is still the most popular language to learn. Experts say that even though learning Spanish is straightforward for many people because of the easy pronunciation the British find the grammar rules complicated.

Interviewer: So Matthew, what's your secret to learning another language?

Matthew: My answer is simple. There is no secret. You really don't need to take any expensive language-learning courses, especially if you're on a budget. The simplest way is to take a child's attitude, like a desire to play in the language and to laugh at mistakes. It's true that some people like to use a new language creatively by writing songs, poems, or stories. But not everyone can do this.

Interviewer: And, do you have any worries about the future of languages?

Matthew: There're more than 6,000 languages spoken globally at present, but what really worries language specialists is the prediction that around 90% of world languages are likely to die out. Many parents are annoyed that their children are not learning their native languages, because today's youth don't think it will be useful. Also, there're certain cultures and smaller economies which will struggle to survive because they're unable to speak the main business languages of English and Chinese.
